

Construction – a tailored programme

To help you navigate through the programme at IOSH 2018 we have suggested some potential pathways for different sectors and have highlighted some “don’t miss” sessions for certain skills. To view the full programme and other track sessions please visit the conference website – www.ioshconference.com/programme

Day one: Monday 17 September 2018

07.45 Registration

09.15 Breakfast session: Legal update – what key lessons can we learn from case reviews?

Kizzy Augustin, Partner, Russell Cooke LLP

10.00 Chair’s opening remarks

Cathy Newman, TV presenter and broadcaster

10.15 President’s welcome

Craig Foyle, President, IOSH

10.20 Mental health and wellbeing and the CEO

Bev Messinger, Chief Executive, IOSH

11.10 Track session 1

Track A: From minor errors to marginal gains

John Richardson, Operations Manager, Matrix Risk Control

Organisations rarely look at the marginal gains they could achieve by making small improvements to their core activities, reflecting on performance in detail only during an investigation following a major incident. Reflecting on and looking more closely at “near-misses” may provide the best opportunities for learning to prevent major incidents and improve overall business performance.

11.55 Refreshments and exhibition

12.30 Track session 2

Track C: Leading risk - a change in perspective

Ruth Denyer, Group Operational Risk Director and Alison Hodgetts, Group Head of Health and Safety Risk Management, ITV plc

The session provides an overview and insight into how the vision for Health and Safety Risk Management (Collaborative, Innovative and Empowering) at ITV has been brought alive through a ‘Leading Risk’ programme. Key elements of the approach, and how learning informs risk management, will be shared.

13.15 Lunch and exhibition

14.30 Building a safer future

Dame Judith Hackitt, Chair, EEF, the Manufacturers Organisation

15.30 OSH Question Time

16.30 Refreshments and exhibition

17.05 Track session 3

Track D: Professional collaboration to ensure fire protection

Dr David Gold, Chair, IOSH Fire Risk Management Group and Neil Vincer, Corporate EHS Project Manager, Givaudan

The session discusses how a range of professionals can collaborate to provide a coordinated, effective response to the prevention of fires. The barriers to collaboration will be considered as well as how the OSH professional can work with others on fire suppression systems and the implications that this has for various sectors.

17.50 Tracks end

18.00 Networking drinks reception in exhibition area

19.00 End of day one

Construction – a tailored programme

To help you navigate through the programme at IOSH 2018 we have suggested some potential pathways for different sectors and have highlighted some “don’t miss” sessions for certain skills. To view the full programme and other track sessions please visit the conference website – www.ioshconference.com/programme

Day two: Tuesday 18 September 2018

07.45 Registration (for day two delegates only)

08.00 Breakfast session: Contractor Management and Human Performance Fundamentals
Salman Khan, EHS Head, Siemens, Middle East, North Africa & Pakistan

09.00 Welcome to day 2 and housekeeping
Cathy Newman, TV presenter and broadcaster

09.10 Chair’s introduction to Mark Gallagher
Cathy Newman, TV presenter and broadcaster

09.15 Keynote (motivational) address: Safety in Formula 1
Mark Gallagher, Founder and CEO of Performance Insights Ltd, co-commentator and Formula 1 analyst for the BBC, ESPN and Sky Sports F1

10.15 Refreshments and exhibition

10.45 Track session 4

Track B: The challenge of WRMSDs

Katharine Metters, Lead Consultant, Posturite

This session discusses why some of the initiatives we have used and are still using to reduce MSDs may or may not be successful, and the opportunities and challenges that face us now. Some of the factors Katharine discusses include the agile/flexible workforce, wellness, different generations at work, the manager’s role and technology.

11.40 Track session 5

Track C: Workplace fatalities: The do’s and don’ts when managing an investigation

Helen Devery, Partner and National Head of regulatory practice, BLM

The session reviews the considerations for any organisation dealing with the most difficult of circumstances. It covers: managing an investigation and individuals, responding to regulatory scrutiny and do’s and don’ts in the process. Using case studies and providing insight and advice, the session also reviews outcomes based on the sentencing guidelines.

12.25 Lunch and exhibition

13.40 In the eye of The Smiler
Dominic Wigley, Group Health, Safety & Security Director, Merlin Entertainments Group

14.25 Equality and diversity in OSH: a panel debate

15.10 Summary/conclusions
Vincent Ho, President Elect, IOSH

15.30 Track session 6

Track B: Health, wellbeing and fatigue risk management

John Dony, Director and Joy Inouye, Research Associate – Campbell Institute; Director, Environmental, Health, Safety and Sustainability, National Safety Council

For years, safety professionals have been conducting risk assessments to identify areas/activities of greatest risk to workers. The Campbell Institute proposes that this same approach be applied to the area of workplace fatigue. Understanding the connection between wellbeing, health, and safety can help safety professionals to develop a truly integrated health and safety management system.

16.25 Interactive roundtable discussions

17.00 Grab and go refreshments